BBQ Safety Igniter

Piezoelectric igniter good to 100,000 strikes

- Lights all types of ignitable gases including MAPP, Propane, Butane, Oxyacetylene, etc..
- 15" wire keeps fingers a safe distance from ignition!
- Safer than using matches or lighters!
- No batteries or fuel ever required!
- Don't waste money replacing a broken grill igniter.
- Stainless steel construction with durable water-resistant ABS handle.
- One year warranty
- No batteries or fuel required
- Generates 10,000 volts
- Works in cold or hot weather - tested to subfreezing temperatures
- Not harmful to body (if shocked) - similar to a static electricity shock
- Patent Pending

INSTRUCTIONS:

1.) Place the end of the unit approximately 3 inches from the gas outlet on the burner (any place along the burner is fine)

2.) Turn on gas and strike the igniter immediately. Remove immediately upon ignition of the gas. Do not turn on gas before accurately placing the electrodes in the appropriate location for efficient ignition.

Note 1: Adjust distance from 2-4 inches if ignition does not take place upon first strike.

Note 2: If it is windy outside, place the electrode closer to the gas outlet on the burner.

Note 3: Unit is not intended to be exposed to the gas flame and must be removed upon ignition of the gas. Keeping the unit exposed to the flame will result in damage to the unit.

Note 4: Do not insert the electrode end or any other part of the unit in any flammable mixture.

Note 5: If exposed to water or left outside for a prolonged period, the unit should still work properly. However, if the unit does not function correctly, simply hang it in a warm dry location overnight and test the next day.

CAUTIONS

- Use only as instructed.
- Not to be used as a toy.
- Keep away from children. Electrodes are sharp.
- Do not engage igniter near gasoline fumes.
- Not appropriate for charcoal grills.
- If spark fails to arc on electrodes, slightly bend the two electrodes closer to each other.
- Item not made to be disassembled. Disassembly voids any warranty.
